Weekly Newsletter

Friday 5th January 2024

Want to know more about how you can best support your child with their reading at home?

During the week beginning the 5th February, parents from children in all classes from y1-y6 will be invited to come into school and hear, from the teachers themselves, the best ways to improve your child's reading at home through questioning and use of the phonics strategies we use in school. You will leave with new, easy-to-use ideas and question starters that you can use with any book with your child.

More information to follow...

I hope you've all had a restful and happy break.

We are straight back into the swing of things already but this week has been a little bit different!

This week has been Design Technology week and the children have been learning about significant inventors and designers. Each class have focused on somebody different and next Monday, we will be having a special sharing assembly where the children will share what they have learnt and their work. I have seen some great things going on in the past few days including the making of battery powered games, influenced by the study of Alessandro Volta, clothes designed and made in the style of Vivienne Westwood, the study of Tim Berners-Lee concluding with web design by the children and a study of Louis Braille with the children writing their own messages using this technique. If you get the chance, ask your child about who they have been studying this week and the work they have done. At the end of last half term, the School Councillors informed me that the children would like to see the return of the Friendship Awards. Pre-Covid, children had the opportunity to fill in a slip to explain why they would like to nominate someone for a friendship award. If chosen, the child and their friend received a friendship badge for their pennant and a little certificate for the winner of the award. So...as requested...these awards will return next week but with the addition of our new post box! I bought the post box for school as a keepsake - a reminder of the time that Elizabeth II reigned. It is a real post box which I have had fixed into the wall next to our time capsule. Children can post their nominations in it each week and the School Councillors will empty it weekly and pass any nominations to me. These awards are really lovely as they share such positivity and love - I am thrilled the request for their return has come from the children. If you like, you can support your child at home in writing a nomination for a friend in school (or an adult) and send it into school with them to post. You can download the form here but written on a piece of paper is also fine.
